

Behold, the Travel Toys of the Stars

From John Travolta's 707 Jet to Paul Allen's $200 Million Yacht, Celebs Have Biggest Playthings

(ABC News Photo Illustration)

By LAUREN ZINN

Jan. 22, 2008 --

Even celebrities have to commute. But by travel toys we don't mean simply fancy cars.

The best celeb travel toys have a lot more cachet than their price tags. We're talking about transportation that makes a statement.

It might say: "Save the environment, drive a hybrid."

Or: "Forget the environment, it's my jet."

Or even: "At $200 million, I am my own environment floating at sea."

From a revamped passenger jet-cum-private plane to the most expensive yacht ever built, these travel toys pack the personality of the celebs who drive, ride and fly them.

Angelina Jolie isn't the only celebrity with a pilot's license. Tom Cruise, John Travolta and other stars who aren't Scientologists have also logged time in the cockpit.

But Jolie is the one who came under fire when she purchased one of the fastest single-engine aircrafts available — the $360,000 Cirrus SR 22. Some critics caused a bit of turbulence when they suggested she is putting her family at risk by flying such an advanced aircraft, with so little experience. So far, the Jolie jet remains unscathed.